The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, and 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Filice in view of Mulhausen.

Filice discloses the claimed device with the exception of the reversal of the male/female connector elements as pointed out previously. However, as disclosed by Mulhausen it is known in the art to reverse these elements. In view of Mulhausen such a reversal of parts would have been obvious to the ordinarily skilled artisan. See In re Gazda, 219 F.2d 449, 104 USPQ 400 (CCPA 1955). Applicant's arguments in this regard have been noted. However, in view of Mulhausen and the Gazda doctrine they are not considered persuasive.

Applicant's arguments have been noted. However, the fact that Mulhausen is directed to a two piece bat wherein the barrel is made smaller for training purposes is irrelevant to the reason for which Mulhausen has been applied. The type of barrel is not at issue. The type of connection is the issue and in this regard Mulhausen taken with Filice and in light of Gazda, clearly establishes in the art that the male/female connection may be reversed.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5

Art Unit: 3711

USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992).

In this case, the references themselves in light of Gazda clearly give the suggestion to use a male/female connection in either orientation when connecting a bat barrel and handle. Nothing in Graham negates the rule of Gazda.

Claims 3-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the art as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Peng. As evidenced by Muhlhausen when reversing the male/female connectors of a bat barrel/handle connection it is known in the art to use a transverse locking member. As disclosed by Peng a locking member such as that claimed by the applicant are known in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used such a locking member on a reversed connection bat of the Filice design as well to securely fasten it together.

In response to applicant's arguments, note the examiner's comments above. Furthermore, Peng clearly is applicable because the stem may be considered part of the barrel inserted into the handle or as part of the handle structure inserted into the barrel. In either case a transverse locking member is used to join the barrel and handle portions of the bat.

Applicant's arguments filed 5/19/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
